Atlanta, Georgia, June 30th, 1917.

To Honorable Hugh M. Dorsey, Governor, and Members of the General Assembly of Georgia.

Gentlemen:

I beg to submit to you, this, the sixth annual report, covering the operation of the Department of Game and Fish.

I will take up first the subject of BIRDS.

The game birds of this State are responsible, almost entirely for the protection which we are able to give all birds, and game and fish as well, as it is through and because of a system of licensing hunters that revenue is provided which makes possible the enforcement of laws designed to protect and conserve all of the wild life and fish of this State; and it is, therefore, right and proper that we should give our best efforts to protecting this game, that a supply may be perpetuated, a great asset conserved, and the sportsmen, always friends of the game laws, given a fair return for their money.

Of our game birds the Bob White, Dove and Wild Turkey are the most important and abundant, in the order named, and I am glad to report that under the protection which the law has afforded, and through the activities and zeal of game wardens and interested citizens the first and last named are steadily increasing, while the dove is at least holding his own, but this bird, being in a sense migratory, we cannot give as full protection as is possible with the quail and turkey.

The present season has been ideal, from weather standpoint, for the hatching and raising of the game birds mentioned, and we may, therefore, expect an abundant supply the coming fall and winter.

Our non-game birds are being well cared for, and in fact a sentiment favorable to their protection has developed so rapidly, (largely because of a realization of their economic value as destroyers of bugs and insects,) that it is rarely indeed that we receive reports of even the much-maligned small boy having been active with "sling shot" or air rifle, or that he has destroyed the nests or eggs of birds. The school teachers of the State have done, and are doing a wonderful work in educating the children as to the economic and sentimental value of birds, while the newspapers have likewise given freely of their space, with results that are each day more apparent.

As time passes we are forced to realize more fully the great and indispensable service that is performed by insectivorous and carnivorous birds. A few years ago the Mole Cricket, or "Ground Puppy" as he was locally called, made his appearance in Glynn County, in the vicinity of Brunswick, destroying many thousands of dollars worth of truck gardens, and even sugar-cane crops, increasing rapidly and spreading out until the counties of Camden, McIntosh and Liberty were infested, and the situation became serious. No practical means of destroying them was found. Gradually, however, they appeared to be diminishing in numbers, and, quite by accident at first, though later confirmed by investigation and observation, it was found that the Boat-tailed Grackle, or "Jack Daw" was feeding upon this cricket, the result being that the depredations of this insect has been overcome, and the indications are that the whole family will soon be destroyed.

Every insect which we have, and even their aggs, are warred on day and night by birds, according to their size and kind.

There was far less hunting done the past season than usual, due to several causes, among which might be mentioned: The high cost of ammunition; extremely warm, dry weather in South Georgia the early part of the season, and a disinclination of many land-owners to allow hunting on their lands, they taking advantage of the protection which the law provides and forbidding all hunting, because of the advent of the boll weevil and the opinion that the quail joined forces with other birds in the destruction of the weevil, and believing that the old saying "A bird in hand is worth two in the bush" had best be reversed. A pretty good doctrine generally, though investigations have failed to establish the right of exemption of the quail along those lines.

GAME ANIMALS.

Deer, Squirrels and O'possums are the only protected game animals which we have. The deer are increasing rapidly in South Georgia, and particularly in the coast counties, while on Blackbeard Island, where they are absolutely protected the increase in the past spring was probably in excess of four hundred, and we are now preparing to remove the surplus, beginning this fall, to sections of the State where they are most needed, and will be cared for, besides supplying parks and zoos with specimens, and even individuals, under certain circumstances, where they are to be used only for propagation purposes.

The Cat or Gray Squirrel is a popular and abundant little game animal, and is well protected under existing laws.

The Fox Squirrel, perhaps the most beautiful of all of our game animals, had almost become extinct, when the Legislature provided absolute protection for a term of years. This animal is now slowly recuperating, but the necessity for protection has not passed, and I would call your attention to the fact that the first of January next will end the protection given this animal under present laws, and I suggest that this protection be extended for another five years.

The o'possum, regarded in some sections of the State as more of a liability than an asset, stubbornly holds his own, and continues to furnish fun and food for the humblest citizen and the epicure as well.

The protection given Fawns, Wild Pheasants, Grouse and other imported game birds has expired, and your attention is called to the importance of renewing the same.

In the matter of game legislation I beg to once more call your attention to the imperative need of providing that all persons who hunt, except on their own lands, or lands owned by husband, wife or parent, should be required to purchase a license.

Many irresponsible persons who take advantage of the present law which permits one to hunt in his own militia district without a license, are inclined to disregard other rights of his neighbors, and does not always confine his operations to the pursuit of game. This is particularly true where there are large numbers of negroes, who are glad of an excuse to prowl through the woods, with dog and gun, when they had far better devote their time and energies to pursuits more in line with their temperaments and necessities; and besides it is almost impossible to secure convictions of those who are charged with hunting beyond their own districts without licenses, as the district lines are not clearly defined, and game wardens themselves often cannot tell where they begin or end, and this confusion has the effect of acquitting even those who deliberately hunt far beyond their district lines, without license.

The farmers would welcome the protection given by such an amendment, while the legitimate hunter does not object to paying one dollar for the privilege of hunting in his county.

It has been suggested that the open season on deer might be extended to include December. The present season opens October 1st, and closes November 30th. The weather during October is usually so warm that few persons care to hunt, and as a result the open season is not fully enjoyed; and it is also, with some reason, claimed that many persons would like to indulge in this exhilarating and exciting sport, but for business or other reasons cannot do so before the Christmas holidays, and so under present laws must entirely forego this pleasure. The bag limit, as reduced to two in season, should remain as now.

You will give the above suggestions such consideration as, in your judgment, they may merit.

FISH.

At last our fish, as found in both coast and inland waters, are coming into their own. They are no longer regarded with indifference, nor is this due entirely to the unusual condition brought about by the war. Because of a steady increase in population, and a rapid decrease in such food animals as cattle, sheep and hogs, it has become necessary to look elsewhere for a considerable portion of our meat food supply; and so naturally and properly we turn to fish.—a most nutritious and economical food, and one that has not, and probably will not increase in price. The importance of conserving, protecting and propagating fish cannot be exaggerated. Fish of all kinds, including oysters, clams and shrimp, once regarded as luxuries are now, by comparison, our cheapest meats. One of the most crying needs of this State is to provide for the leasing of underwater oyster lands for the cultivation of oysters. Practically all oyster-producing states have already recognized the need of this, and have enacted laws to carry it into effect.

Because of the cost of cultivation and fertilization of land crops, increased production must entail costly preparation and large investments, while with water crops nature does practically all, when given a chance, and in the case of the oyster seeding is sometimes necessary, but cultivation and fertilization does not follow. It is estimated that Georgia has 100,000 acres of oyster bottoms, which are now, under the law, not only public property, but public prey, and are alike worthless to the people and the State. The leasing of these bottoms by the State would produce considerable revenue from the start, and in a few years the income thus derived would amount to a great deal, besides providing lucrative employment for hundreds of people and making it possible to place Georgia among the real oyster producing states. While any citizen may now plant oysters on these public bottoms, he has no protection, and his neighbors can take them before his very eyes, and he is powerless to interfere.

The entire value of Oysters, taken and sold from the waters of this State the season just passed was not in excess of $150,000. This can be increased ten-fold within three years.

The shrimp and prawn business of our coast is now one of the chief industries. The season now closing will show that there were taken from the waters of McIntosh, Glynn and Camden counties, with Brunswick as packing and distributing center, the vast amount of $750,000 in this crustacean alone; and the demand far exceeds the supply or present facilities for taking and marketing. These shrimp and prawn are shipped to practically every state in the Union, while thousands of cases of the canned product are being exported to England.

The business of taking and marketing the many varieties of edible scale fish from the waters of our coast is steadily increasing, and in this industry, which includes shad, Savannah is leading, and I predict that within a few years fish are destined to become the staple meat food of our people.

I would recommend that the salt-water fish laws be amended so as to provide for the licensing of non-residents who would engage in the business of taking fish from the waters of this State for commercial purposes. So far as I am informed Georgia stands alone in prohibiting non-residents from engaging in this business, and I would like to see this stigma removed.

I would recommend also that the law be changed so as to permit the taking of Turtle Eggs, for food, particularly at a time when all food will be needed.

A general revision of the fresh-water fish laws would greatly improve them, and I trust this subject may receive attention.

Time and effort have convinced the people of the necessity and importance of enforcing our Game and Fish laws, as measures of conservation, and I am pleased to report a more general respect for the same.

I append a financial statement of the Department, which has been audited to date, and to which I invite your attention.

Respectfully,

Chas. Arrow,

State Game and Fish Commissioner.
