Religious and Chapel Use. The Chapel was used every Sunday for regular Protestant Sunday School and Services.

Interpretive Services. Canyon Visitor Center closed September 30, Old Faithful Visitor Center was manned through October 10, and unattended with periodic checks made during the remainder of the month. Mammoth Visitor Center remained open every day through October 9, and for the rest of the month five days a week, being closed Saturdays and Sundays.

Museum Activities and Exhibits. Museum Curator Meagher began a complete inventory of all exhibited and stored items in the Museum collections, converting the old museum records to the new system.

A buffalo skull was shipped to the Superintendent of Sequoia-Kings Canyon National Parks for use by their Boy Scout Troop.

Research and Observation. Dr. Dee Taylor and Jacob Hoffman of Montana State University visited Molly Island and other islands in Yellowstone Lake as part of the Archeological reconnaissance they are performing under a contract with the Region Two Office. Results were largely negative.

Natural History Association. The Association had two employees working part-time during the month.

Concessioners. Superintendent Garrison approved the increase in the price of Gasoline on October 1, from 36.8¢ to 37.8¢ for regular, and 40.8¢ to 41.8¢ for Ethyl. This was due to increase of one cent in Federal Tax.

All facilities at Lake and Old Faithful were closed by the end of the month except the mess at Old Faithful which will continue to feed visitors.

Maintenance. Heavy road maintenance included road work on the East Entrance and South Entrance roads. Snow storms required plowing and sanding of roads. Snow removal equipment is ready for winter use. Much of the maintenance was the repair of damage on the west side of the Park which was caused by the earthquake. The parking area at Fountain Paint Pots was restored.

Contracts. The O'Malley Lumber Company, Billings, Montana, was awarded a contract for 169,600 feet of lumber at a cost of $18,374.15. This material will be used for constructing board walks.

A contract for $27,816.30 was awarded to Mannix Electric of Bozeman, Montana, for the Mammoth electrical system extension.

1. The first step in the process of identifying a problem is to define the problem. This involves identifying the symptoms of the problem and determining the scope of the problem. Once the problem has been defined, the next step is to identify the causes of the problem. This involves identifying the factors that are contributing to the problem and determining the underlying causes. Once the causes have been identified, the next step is to develop a plan of action. This involves identifying the steps that need to be taken to solve the problem and determining the resources that will be needed to implement the plan. Finally, the last step in the process is to implement the plan and monitor the results. This involves putting the plan into action and tracking the progress of the solution. Once the problem has been solved, the final step is to evaluate the results and determine if the solution was effective. This involves comparing the results of the solution to the original problem and determining if the problem has been solved. If the problem has not been solved, the process may need to be repeated.

1. The first group of people who are not in the majority are the people who are not in the majority.

1. The first step in the process of identifying a problem is to determine the nature of the problem. This involves a thorough understanding of the situation and the factors that may be contributing to the problem. Once the nature of the problem is understood, the next step is to identify the causes of the problem. This involves a detailed analysis of the situation and the factors that may be contributing to the problem. Once the causes of the problem are identified, the next step is to develop a plan of action to address the problem. This involves determining the steps that need to be taken to address the problem and the resources that will be needed to implement the plan. Finally, the last step in the process is to implement the plan and monitor the results. This involves putting the plan into action and tracking the progress of the implementation to ensure that the problem is being addressed effectively.

SECRET

1. The first of the two is a "copy" of the original document, which is made by a process called "photocopying". This process involves shining a light on the original document, which reflects the light back to a sensor. The sensor then converts the light into an electrical signal, which is then used to create a copy of the document. This process is very accurate and can produce a copy that is almost identical to the original.

1. The first step in the process of the investigation is to identify the problem. This is done by the investigator who is assigned to the case. The investigator will then gather information about the problem and the people involved. This information will be used to develop a plan of action. The plan of action will be implemented and the results will be evaluated. If the results are not satisfactory, the plan will be revised and the process will be repeated. The process of the investigation is a continuous one and it is important to keep the information up to date. The investigator will also keep the people involved informed of the progress of the investigation. This will help to build trust and cooperation. The process of the investigation is a team effort and it is important to work together to solve the problem.
