As the lead conservation agency in the United States, the National Park Service is pleased to share this catalog of available publications with you. This is by no means every book published by our agency, but it is an excellent representation of the historic preservation materials that have been developed in our programs over the years, and that continue to be developed as an integral part of our "service" to the American people. The wide range of titles in this first Cultural Resources Programs catalog actually says a lot about what we are doing to help preserve our American heritage, both within our Park System and through our equally important outreach programs.

Sharing the most up-to-date guidance, preservation technology, and research results with the broadest audience possible continues to be one of the agency's major goals. This new Catalog is one more way the National Park Service is strengthening America's preservation network.

The National Park Service's Cultural Resource Programs—administered in ten NPS Regions across the United States and in the Washington Office—provide a variety of historic preservation services for the States and Territories, Federal agencies, and the general public. In addition to setting Standards for all aspects of preservation, from research and documentation to repair work, the Cultural Programs publish and distribute technical information. Our books, handbooks, technical leaflets, microfiche, microfilm, slides, and videotapes are available through catalog sales from several outlets, including the Government Printing Office, National Technical Information Service, American Association for State and Local History, the National Trust for Historic Preservation, and several university presses.

We should note that this is a sampling of our most popular titles. Due to space limitations and constantly expanding stock, the listing is far from complete. If you are searching for a specific publication, please call or write us for further information. Addresses and phone numbers for the NPS Regional Offices are on p.24 ; the Washington Office's addresses and phone numbers are given at the end of each divisional listing.

- The Preservation Assistance Division (PAD) conducts a variety of activities to guide Federal agencies, States, the Service, and the general public in historic preservation project work. PAD
- establishes standards and guidelines
- develops, publishes, and distributes technical preservation information
- provides training on appropriate preservation approaches and treatments
- administers the Preservation Tax Incentives program
- monitors the status of National Historic Landmarks & coordinates technical assistance
- manages the Historic Preservation Fund grants-in-aid program
- conducts research to help quantify the effects of acid rain on cultural resources
- implements the Skills Development Plan for historical architects in the National Park Service

Program/Training Information

Superintendent of Documents U.S. Government Printing Office

Preservation Tax Incentives for Historic Buildings. Explains in laymen's terms Federal tax incentives available to owners who rehabilitate commercial historic structures. Includes an outline of the certification process, program regulations, and a list of State Historic Preservation Officers. 24 pages. Available only in shrink-wrapped sets of 25. Ideal for rehabilitation conferences and workshops. 1987. GPO stock number: 024-005-01038-6. $15.00 for 25 booklets.

The Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation with Guidelines for Rehabilitating Historic Buildings (rev. 1983) Used to determine whether the historic character of a building is preserved in the process of rehabilitation. All projects that owners wish to be certified for purposes of Federal tax incentives are reviewed and evaluated in accordance with the ten Standards for Rehabilitation. The accompanying guidelines, intended to assist in applying the Standards, recommend responsible methods and approaches and also list those treatments that should be avoided. 59 pages. GPO stock number: 024-005-01003-3. $2.00 per copy.

U.S. Department of Commerce National Technical Information Service

Skills Development Plan for Historical Architects in the National Park Service. Hugh C. Miller, FAIA, Lee H. Nelson, FAIA, and Emogene A. Bevitt. Identifies some 120 skills needed to work on historic structures. In addition to historical architects, preservationists are encouraged to participate in the self-paced training course with the goal of studying a topic, writing about it, and sharing information with an audience of peers. Selected bibliography. 96 pages. 1986. NTIS order number: PB88-192265. $14.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Preservation Briefs

Preservation Briefs assist owners and developers of historic buildings in recognizing and resolving common preservation and repair problems prior to work. The briefs are especially useful to preservation tax incentive program applicants because they explain recommended methods and approaches for rehabilitating historic buildings in a manner that is consistent with their historic character.

Superintendent of Documents U.S. Government Printing Office

Preservation Briefs 1: The Cleaning and Waterproof Coating of Masonry Buildings. Robert C. Mack, AIA. Provides guidance on the techniques of cleaning and waterproofing and explains the consequences of their inappropriate use. 4 pages. 5 illustrations. 1975. GPO stock number: 024-005-00877-2. $1.00 per copy.

Preservation Briefs 2: Repointing Mortar Joints in Historic Brick Buildings. Robert C. Mack, AIA, de Teel Patterson Tiller, and James S. Askins. Provides information on appropriate materials and methods for repointing historic brick buildings. 8 pages. 12 illustrations. 1980. GPO stock number: 024-005-00878-1. $1.00 per copy.

Preservation Briefs 3: Conserving Energy in Historic Buildings. Baird M. Smith, AIA. Provides information on materials and techniques to consider or avoid when undertaking weatherization and energy conservation measures in historic buildings. 8 pages. 8 illustrations. 1978. GPO stock number: 024-005-00879-9. $1.00 per copy.

Preservation Briefs 4: Roofing for Historic Buildings. Sarah M. Sweetser. Provides a brief history of the most commonly used roofing materials in America. Presents a sound preservation approach to roof repair, roof replacement, and the use of alternative roofing materials. 1978. GPO stock number: 024-005-00880-2. $1.00 per copy.

Preservation Briefs 5: The Preservation of Historic Adobe Buildings. Provides information on the traditional materials and construction of adobe buildings, and the causes of adobe deterioration. Makes recommendations for preserving historic adobe buildings. 8 pages. 15 illustrations. 1978. GPO stock number: 024-005-00881-1. $1.00 per copy.

Preservation Briefs 6: Dangers of Abrasive Cleaning to Historic Buildings. Anne E. Grimmer. Cautions against the use of sandblasting to clean various buildings and suggests measures to mitigate the effects of improper cleaning. Explains the limited circumstances under which abrasive cleaning may be appropriate. 8 pages. 10 illustrations. 1979. GPO stock number: 024-005-00882-9. $1.00 per copy.

Preservation Briefs 7: The Preservation of Historic Glazed Architectural Terra-Cotta. de Teel Patterson Tiller. Discusses deterioration problems that commonly occur with terra-cotta and provides methods for determining the extent of such deterioration. Makes recommendations for maintenance and repair, and suggests appropriate replacement materials. 8 pages. 11 illustrations. 1979. GPO stock number: 024-005-00883-7. $1.00 per copy.

Preservation Briefs 8: Aluminum and Vinyl Siding on Historic Buildings: The Appropriateness of Substitute Materials for Resurfacing Historic Wood Frame Buildings. John H. Myers, revised by Gary L. Hume. Discusses the appearance of various types of historic wood siding and makes recommendations for repair and replacement. Outlines the very limited instances under which substitute siding may be an acceptable alternative. 7 pages. 5 illustrations. Rev. 1984. GPO stock number: 024-005-00869-1. $1.00 per copy.

Preservation Briefs 9: The Repair of Historic Wooden Windows. John H. Myers. Provides useful information on evaluating and repairing historic wooden windows found in typical rehabilitation projects. Emphasizes practical methods for homeowners or developers. 8 pages. 10 illustrations. 1981. GPO stock number: 024-005-00884-5. $1.00 per copy.

Preservation Briefs 10: Exterior Paint Problems on Historic Woodwork. Kay D. Weeks and David W. Look, AIA. Identifies and describes common types of paint surface conditions and failures. Provides guidance on preparing historic woodwork for repainting, including limited and total paint removal. 12 pages. 14 illustrations. 1982. GPO stock number: 024-005-00885-3. $1.00 per copy.

Preservation Briefs 11: Rehabilitating Historic Storefronts. H. Ward Jandl. Explores the role of the storefront in historic buildings and provides guidance on rehabilitation techniques for historic storefronts as well as compatible new storefront designs. 12 pages. 12 illustrations. 1982. GPO stock number: 024-005-00886-1. $1.00 per copy.

Preservation Briefs 12: The Preservation of Historic Pigmented Structural Glass Vitrolite and Carrara Glass). Provides information on the early manufacture, installation, and use of this decorative building product commonly found in 20th century buildings; reasons for its damage; and a general approach for its maintenance, repair, and replacement. 8 pages. 16 illustrations. 1984. GPO stock number: 024-005-00851-9. $1.00 per copy.

Preservation Briefs 13: The Repair and Thermal Upgrading of Historic Steel Windows. Sharon C. Park, AIA. Presents a brief historical background on the development, use, and styles of rolled steel windows popular in the first half of the 20th century. Explains steps for cleaning and repairing damaged steel windows; also provides information on appropriate methods of weatherstripping and options for storm panels or the installation of thermal glass. 12 pages. 10 illustrations. 1984. GPO stock number: 024-005-00868-3. $1.00 per copy.

Preservation Briefs 14: New Exterior Additions to Historic Buildings: Preservation Concerns. Kay D. Weeks. Uses a series of examples to suggest ways that attached new additions can successfully serve contemporary uses as part of a rehabilitation project while preserving significant historic materials and features and the building's historic character. 12 pages. 30 illustrations. 1986. GPO stock number: 024-005-01011-4. $1.00 per copy.

Preservation Briefs 15: Preservation of Historic Concrete: Problems and General Approaches. William B. Coney, AIA. Focus on reinforced concrete (cast-in-place or reinforced), useful for anyone undertaking repair or limited replacement. The guidance addresses the causes of concrete deterioration, the signs of deterioration, and actual concrete repair. 12 pages. 27 illustrations. 1987. GPO stock number: 024-005-01027-1. $1.00 per copy.

Preservation Briefs 16: The Use of Substitute Materials on Historic Building Exteriors. Sharon C. Park, AIA. Includes a discussion of when to use substitute materials, cautions regarding their expected performance, and descriptions of several substitute materials together with advantages and disadvantages. Summary charts included. 14 pages. 34 illustrations. 1988. GPO stock number: 024-005-01037-8. $1.00 per copy.

Preservation Briefs 17: Architectural Character—Identifying the Visual Aspects of Historic Buildings as an Aid to Preserving Their Character. Lee H. Nelson, FAIA. Essential guidance to help property owners and architects identify those features of historic buildings that give the building its visual character so that their preservation can be maximized in rehabilitation. 1988. GPO stock number: 024-005-01039-4. $1.00 per copy.

Preservation Briefs 18: Rehabilitating Interiors in Historic Buildings—Identifying and Preserving Character-Defining Elements. H. Ward Jandl. Assists building owners in identifying significant interior spaces, features, and finishes so they may be preserved in rehabilitation work. The guidance applies to all building types and styles, from 18th century churches to 20th century office buildings. GPO stock number: 024-005-01041-6. $1.00 per copy.

Historic Buildings Preservation Briefs 1-14 (set). Convenient packaging of fourteen Preservation Briefs (see description of topics, above) at a bargain price. The shrink-wrapped sets are particularly popular for preservation workshops and rehabilitation conferences. GPO stock number: 024-005-01026-2. $5.00 per set.

Technical Reports

Technical Reports address in detail problems confronted by architects, engineers, government officials, and other technicians involved in the preservation of historic buildings.

Superintendent of Documents U.S. Government Printing Office

A Glossary of Historic Masonry Deterioration Problems and Preservation Treatments. Anne E. Grimmer. Generously illustrated, provides information on 22 common masonry deterioration problems and their known treatments. Intended for use both as a general reference tool and an on-site interpretive guide in the maintenance and preservation of historic structures. 68 pages. 41 illustrations. 1984. GPO stock number: 024-005-00870-5. $2.50 per copy.

Keeping it Clean: Removing Dirt, Paint, Stains, and Graffiti from Historic Exterior Masonry. Anne E. Grimmer. Newest of PAD's technical reports, covers virtually every aspect of a cleaning project—identifying building materials to be cleaned and ones that might be affected by cleaning; scheduling cleaning around other work; what to ask for in cleaning "specs;" and what kind of test cleaning procedures to use. Useful chart summarizes cleaners and removal techniques. 45 pages. 35 illustrations. Bibliography. 1988. GPO stock number: 024-005-01035-1. $2.50 per copy.

Metals in America's Historic Buildings: Uses and Preservation Treatments. Margot Gayle and David W. Look, AIA. One of the most complete sourcebooks available on historic architectural metals, such as lead, tin, zinc, bronze, copper, iron, nickel, steel, and aluminum. Part 1 focuses on the identification and historic uses of architectural metals; Part 2 provides indepth information on repair and preservation methods, discussing each metal individually. 168 pages. 180 illustrations. 1980. GPO stock number: 025-005-00910-8. $6.00 per copy.

Moisture Problems in Historic Masonry Walls: Diagnosis and Treatment. Baird M. Smith, AIA. Intended for architects, building owners, property managers, and others responsible for the care and maintenance of historic buildings. Discusses problems caused by excessive moisture in historic masonry walls and outlines a methodology for diagnosing such problems and selected appropriate treatments. 48 pages. 32 illustrations. 1984. GPO stock number: 024-005-00872-1. $2.25 per copy.

Access to Historic Buildings for the Disabled: Suggestions for Planning and Implementation. Charles Parrott. Describes methods to achieve barrier-free access to historic buildings that conform with the Department of the Interior's historic preservation standards. Addresses a variety of specific needs for the disabled, including ramps, vertical wheelchair lifts, curb cuts, railings, restrooms, miscellaneous fixtures, and signage. Also examines techniques to make programs and services housed in historic buildings accessible in lieu of architectural changes. 92 pages. 42 illustrations. 1980. NTIS order number: PB85-180826. $14.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Cyclical Maintenance for Historic Buildings. J. Henry Chambers, AIA. Provides a step-by-step process for building managers, architects, and others involved in the routine maintenance of historic properties. 125 pages. 1976. NTIS order number: PB87-118659. $19.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Epoxies for Wood Repairs in Historic Buildings. Morgan W. Phillips and Dr. Judith E. Selwyn. Presents research findings on the use of epoxies to preserve historic wood features rather than replacing them. Discusses low-viscosity epoxy consolidants that can be soaked into rotted wood in order to restore its solidity; and epoxy pastes for filling holes and cracks in historic woodwork. Includes useful case-study applications, suggested formulations, and lists of suppliers. 72 pages. 43 illustrations. Appendix. 1978. NTIS order number: PB85-180834. $14.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Exterior Cleaning of Historic Masonry Buildings. Norman R. Weiss. Discusses various methods of cleaning and the complex factors to consider before selecting a suitable method. Intended primarily for architects, conservators, government officials, and other professionals responsible for the preparation of cleaning programs. 18 pages. Selected bibliography. 1977. NTIS order number: PB85-180818. $9.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Photogrammetric Recording of Cultural Resources. Perry E. Borchers. Describes the basic principles of photogrammetry and their application to the recording of cultural resources. Includes several case study applications. 38 pages. 27 illustrations. 1977. NTIS order number: PB85-180792. $12.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Rectified Photography and Photo Drawings for Historic Preservation. J. Henry Chambers, AIA. Explains the process of making photographic negatives of a predetermined size or scale which can be enlarged to a convenient architectural scale, then printed on photo-sensitive drafting film for working drawings, surveys, and feasibility studies. 13 illustrations. 1973. NTIS order number: PB85-180768. $12.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Using Photogrammetry to Monitor Materials Deterioration and Structural Problems on Historic Buildings: Dorchester Heights Monument, A Case Study. J. Henry Chambers, AIA. Details the cost-effectiveness of close-range photogrammetry in monitoring the condition of historic masonry structures, particularly when more conventional methods of inspection are impracticable. 16 pages. 6 illustrations. Bibliography. 1985. NTIS order number: PB87-232146. $9.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

X-Ray Examination of Historic Structures.

David M. Hart. Explains a method for nondestructive probing of historic buildings that permits investigation of components normally hidden from view. Intended for architects, conservators, and other professionals. 24 pages. 19 illustrations. 1975. NTIS order number: PB85-180800. $12.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Other Sales

Moving Historic Buildings. John Obed Curtis. Discusses the limited circumstances under which a historic masonry or frame building should be moved. Establishes a methodology for planning, research, and recording prior to the move; and addresses the siting, foundation construction, building reassembly, and restoration work after a successful move has taken place. 50 pages. 47 illustrations. Selected bibliography. 1975. Reprinted 1988 by the American Association for State and Local History. Order item #688. $8.75 per copy + $2.00 postage to: Order/Billing Department, AASLH, 172 Second Avenue North, Suite 102, Nashville, TN 37201.

Preservation Case Studies

Preservation Case Studies provide practical solution-oriented information for developers, planners, and owners by presenting and illustrating a specific course of action taken to preserve one building or an entire block of buildings. Individual case studies may highlight an innovative rehabilitation technique, financing strategies, or an overall planning methodology.

U.S. Superintendent of Documents Government Printing Office

The Interior Building: Its Architecture and Its Art. David W. Look, AIA, and Carole L. Perreault. Provides thorough photographic documentation of the U.S. Department of the Interior Building, constructed in 1936. Architectural design features of the exterior and interior are shown as well as the entire collection of painted and sculptural decorations commissioned by the Roosevelt administration. Includes historical background information on architect Waddy B. Wood, and the involvement of Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes in designing the structure. 200 pages. 301 illustrations. Bibliography. 1986. GPO stock number: 024-005-01012-2. $8.50 per copy.

Abbeville, South Carolina: Rehabilitation Planning and Project Work in the Commercial Town Square. John M. Bryan and the Triad Architectural Associates. Excellent planning guide for historic building owners interested in rehabilitating an entire block or more of exterior facades to enhance local commercial trade. Using a series of architectural drawings and sketches, recommends preservation work for each building inventoried as well as the urban setting. 55 pages. 24 illustrations. 1979. NTIS order number: PB85-194512. $14.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Fort Johnson, Amsterdam, New York: A Historic Structure Report. Mendel-Mesick-Cohen. From an onsite inspection, shows steps to take prior to undertaking preservation or restoration work on a historic building. Documents the current state of the building's exterior and interior materials and overall structural stability. Recommends work that meets the Department of Interior's historic preservation standards. Archeological report included. 54 pages. 89 illustrations. Appendices. 1978. NTIS order number: PB87-117545. $14.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Main Street Historic District, Van Buren, Arkansas: Storefront Rehabilitation/Restoration Within a Districtwide Plan. Susan Guthrie. Illustrates in detail how storefronts in a small town's commercial center were successfully rehabilitated. Emphasizes both planning and actual work by inclusion of working drawings, and before, during and after photographs. 31 pages. 30 illustrations. 1980. NTIS order number: PB85-194496. $12.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Maymont Park—The Italian Garden, Richmond, Virginia: Landscape Restoration. Barry W. Starke, ASLA. Outlines step-by-step process of conducting historical research on a National Register-listed park, preparing existing conditions documentation, and recommending project work. Includes the landscape architect's drawings and specifications to restore stone walls, garden walkways, and a domed pergola according to Department of the Interior historic preservation standards. 39 pages. 29 illustrations. 1980. NTIS order number: PB85-194538. $12.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Planning for Exterior Work on the First Parish Church, Portland, Maine, Using Photographs as Project Documentation. John C. Hecker, AIA, and Sylvanus W. Doughty. Using annotated photographs to detail damage and deterioration to a specific church building, shows how project work recommendations were made. Useful methodology for owners and developers planning rehabilitation work on any building. Includes architectural specifications for several work areas, such as site improvements, mortar, brick masonry, rough carpentry, slate roofing, dampproofing, flashing, and painting. 58 pages. 15 illustrations. Secretary of the Interior's Standards as Appendix. 1979. NTIS order number: PB85-194520. $14.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Olmsted Park System, Jamaica Pond Boathouse, Jamaica Plain, Massachusetts: Planning for the Preservation of the Boathouse Roof. Richard White. Focuses on planning the preservation of one public park building, but useful for planning an entire project to meet Department of Interior historic preservation standards. Presents a responsible process of documenting proposed work, including a brief history of the site and building, evaluation of deterioration, architectural drawings, and a summary of successfully completed work. 58 pages. 25 illustrations. Appendix. 1979. NTIS order number: PB85-194504. $14.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

The Morse-Libby Mansion: A Report on Restoration Work, 1973-1977. Morgan W. Phillips. Describes and illustrates preservation methods and techniques used in the exterior restoration of an Italianate mansion. 55 pages. 84 illustrations. Appendices. 1977. NTIS order number: PB85-180776. $14.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Preservation Tech Notes

Preservation Tech Notes provide innovative solutions to specific problems encountered in preserving or rehabilitating cultural resources—buildings, structures, and objects. Tech Notes are intended for practitioners in the preservation field, including architects, contractors, and maintenance personnel, as well as for owners and developers seeking the preservation tax investment credit for rehabilitation. To date, 21 Tech Notes have been published and are currently available from two sources—5 from NTIS and the other 16 as part of the Window Handbook (see descriptions below).

U.S. Department of Commerce National Technical Information Service

The five Preservation Tech Notes listed below are sold only as a set. They deal with a variety of preservation topics, from appropriate paint removal procedures to protecting interior features from damage during rehabilitation work. NTIS order number: PB88-192257. $12.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Exterior Woodwork Number 1: "Proper Painting and Surface Preparation," by Sharon C. Park AIA (1986)

Exterior Woodwork Number 2: "Paint Removal from Wood Siding," by Alan O'Bright. (1986)
Historic Interior Spaces Number 1: "Preserving Historic Corridors in Open Office Plans," by Christina Henry (1985)

Museum Collection Number 1: "Museum Collection Storage in a Historic Building Using a Prefabricated Structure," by Don Cumberland, Jr. (1985)

Temporary Protection Number 1, "Temporary Protection of Historic Stairways," by Charles E. Fisher. (1985)

Other Sales

The Window Handbook: Successful Strategies for Rehabilitating Windows in Historic Buildings. National Park Service and Georgia Institute of Technology. Technical guidance, featuring 16 Preservation Tech Notes in a sturdy, attractive loose-leaf notebook. All Tech Note topics listed below. (See also Co-publications, p. 9.) The Window Handbook is available from the Historic Preservation Education Foundation, P.O. Box 27080, Central Station, Washington, D.C. 20038-7080. $28.00, plus $2.00 postage and handling.

Forthcoming IRD Publications

The following topics will be addressed in individual National Register Bulletins. They are planned for release in 1989.

- Evaluating and Nominating Lighthouses and Other Maritime Properties
- Guidelines for Restricted Locational Information
- Identifying and Evaluating Vernacular Landscapes—Rural Historic Districts for National Register Archeology
- Historic Archeology
- Nominating Properties with Traditional Cultural Values
- Standard Data Elements for Historic Preservation
- Surveying and Evaluating Vernacular Architecture
- Standards and Guidelines for Maintaining and Using Survey and Inventory Data
- Uses of the National Register Information System Database

Properties Listed in the National Register of Historic Places, 1966-1987. New comprehensive listing of the more than 49,000 properties listed in the National Register of Historic Places. A useful tool for all preservationists and a must for all libraries. Softcover book available by subscription in Spring, 1989, from the American Association of State and Local History. For further information, write AASLH, 172 Second Avenue, North, Suite 102, Nashville, Tennessee 37201.

The Archeological Assistance Division (AAD) provides Federal and State agencies with technical assistance on the identification, evaluation, and preservation of archeological properties, including limited technical assistance on specific projects for the recovery of important archeological and historic data threatened with damage or destruction by Federal undertakings. AAD is developing a series of technical publications, including Archeological Assistance Program Technical Briefs. The Division undertakes meetings, activities, and programs to coordinate Federal archeological activities; it also prepares the annual report to Congress on the Federal archeological program and maintains the National Archeological Database (NADB) and other archeological clearinghouses, provides training for Federal and State agencies and provides staff support to the Departmental Consulting Archeologist, who also serves as the Assistant Director, Archeology. Staff in the Washington office of AAD develop regulations and other policy documents and coordinate the national archeological program while staff in the regional offices implement national policy through liaison with field offices of other agencies and State Historic Preservation Offices.

An Overview of the Prehistoric Resources of the Metropolitan St. Louis Area. Elizabeth Benchley. Evaluates the prehistoric archeological resource base of the St. Louis metropolitan area with the goal of sharing practical experience in applying resource management techniques and procedures to the planning process. 93 pages. 54 illustrations. Appendices. Bibliography. Tables. 1976. NTIS order number: PB265016. $14.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Archeological and Historic Data Recovery Program: PL 93-291 Reports to Congress 1975-1984. Archeological Assistance Division. A set of six reports to Congress pursuant to Section 5(c) of Public Law 930291, Section 13 of the Archeological Resources Protection Act and Sections 2 and 101(h) of the National Historic Preservation Act, as amended. Each was transmitted to the Interior and Insular Affairs Committee of the Senate and House Representatives to report on the scope and effectiveness of the Federal Archeology Program. 272 pages. Appendices. Bibliographies. NTIS order number: PB88-204011. $25.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Archeomagnetism: A Handbook for the Archeologist. Jeffrey L. Eighmy. Intended to facilitate the collection of archeomagnetic samples so that individual archeologists will have greater access to this important method of dating. The handbook is designed to be both an introduction to archeomagnetism and a practical guide to collection procedures, understanding laboratory analysis, and interpreting results. 104 pages. 36 illustrations. Appendices. Bibliography. Tables. 1980. NTIS order number: PB81-175515. $19.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Bootlegger Trail Site. A Spring Bison Kill. Tom E. Roll and Ken Deaver. Presents excellent descriptions of excavation techniques at this bison kill site as well as a model of subsistence. The report makes a substantial contribution to the understanding of seasonal activities of late prehistoric hunters and gatherers in the project area. The project was a result of the Bureau of Reclamation complying with historic preservation law; the site was located in an area to be impacted by the Water and Power Resources Service's Tiber Reservoir. 174 pages. 58 illustrations. Appendix. Bibliography. Tables. 1980. NTIS order number: PB88-200951. $19.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Cost Analysis of Archeological Activities at Eight Southeastern Sites. Linda F. Carnes, Roy S. Dickens Jr., Linda France, and Ann Long. Analyzes costs of archeological activities (conducted by the Research Laboratories of Anthropology, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill) at eight selected Southeastern sites. The management data produced by this study is designed for use by Federal land managing agencies to assign penalties for site/resource destruction, and for all archeologists in planning projects. University, government, and private sector project costs are compared. 114 pages. 16 illustrations. Appendix. Bibliography. Tables. 1986. NTIS order number: PB88-199146. $19.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Human Bones and Archeology. Douglas H. Ubelaker. Human bones represent a significant part of our nation's cultural heritage. By recording archeological sites, protecting them against disturbance and—when absolutely necessary—excavating them with professional expertise, future generations will have knowledge of the past. 30 pages. 12 illustrations. Bibliography. 1980. NTIS order number: PB81-165615. $12.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Prehistoric Resources of East-Central New England: A Preliminary Predictive Study. Dena F. Dincauze and Judith W. Meyer. Evaluates the prehistoric archeological resource base of east-central New England. This was the first of a series of reports funded by the National Park Service for the purpose of developing methods and gaining practical experience in applying resource management techniques. 55 pages. 21 map illustrations. Appendices. NTIS order number: PB265019. $14.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Scholars as Contractors. William J. Mayer-Oakes and Alice W. Portnoy, eds. Records the results of a workshop, "The Contract Archeology Process," sponsored by the National Park Service in May, 1978 at the Cultural Resources Institute, Department of Archeology, Texas Tech University. Archeologists from Federal agencies, universities, and private business participated in examining contracting processes, project operations, and archeological scholarship accomplished under contract. The workshop proceedings, conclusions, and recommendations were then summarized for this report. 270 pages. 8 illustrations. Appendices. Bibliography. 1979. NTIS order number: PB88-200845. $25.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Scholars as Managers. Alice W. Portnoy, ed. Records the results of a workshop conducted by Texas Tech University, with financial support from the National Park Service. Participants explored the application of certain management techniques to conduct archeological research. 211 pages. 29 illustrations. Appendices. 1978. NTIS order number: PB297975. $25.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

The Antiquities Act of 1906. Ronald F. Lee. Prepared to complete the administrative history of this cornerstone of the National Park System. The study describes and explains early participation by the U.S. Government in some aspects of historic preservation in America. It is a key document for all preservation libraries. 120 pages. Appendix. 1970. NTIS order number: PB88-200837. $19.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

The Archeological Survey: Methods and Uses. Thomas F. King. Guidance for non-archeologists to better understand the nature of archeological resources. Of particular value is the excellent description of how the archeological record has become known in many areas of the United States through survey efforts. 134 pages. 18 illustrations. Appendices. Tables. 1978. NTIS order number: PB284061. $19.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

The Curation and Management of Archeological Collections: A Pilot Study. Bennie C. Keel, ed. Study resulting from a growing awareness that archeological collections were not being adequately maintained and, in consequence, their value for future research and educational purposes was being lost. 139 pages. Bibliography. 1980. NTIS order number: PB81-169880. $19.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

The Importance of Small, Surface, and Disturbed Sites as Sources of Significant Archeological Data. Valerie Talmadge and Olga Chester. Small, surface, or disturbed sites are commonly thought by the public to be of little value for producing important archeological information. This excellent report seeks to dispell that notion, describing what some of these important data are and to offer examples of how they have been discovered, studied, and utilized by archologists. 35 pages. Appendix. 1977. NTIS order number: PB270939. $12.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Archeological Assistance Program Technical Briefs are distributed by AAD at no charge. For copies of the Technical Briefs or for further information, write the Archeological Assistance Division, P.O. Box 37127, Washington, D.C. 20013-7127. Telephone: (202) 343-4101.

The Park Historic Architecture Division conducts activities related to the preservation of the historic and prehistoric structures, and cultural landscapes within the units of the National Park System, including:

- developing, interpreting, and monitoring the application of policies, guidelines and standards
- developing technical preservation techniques and methods
- conducting training for Service employees working in the System
- maintaining the List of Classified Structures, a management inventory of all historic and prehistoric structures in the System, and the Cultural Resources Management Bibliography, a listing of reports that address cultural resources in the System

Framers of the Constitution. James H. Charleton, Robert G. Ferris, and Mary C. Ryan, eds. National Archives. The creation of the U.S. Constitution by the delegates to the Constitutional Convention of 1787 has often been called a "miracle." During that hot summer in Philadelphia, these men debated, argued, and compromised—eventually crafting what is now the oldest written constitution still in use. Who were the men who created this extraordinary document? A revised reprint of a book first published by NPS in 1976 under the title Signers of the Constitution. This new edition includes essays on the 16 delegates who contributed to the creation of the Constitution but did not sign the document, as well as a brief essay on the constitutional holdings of the National Archives. Hardcover. 260 pages. 106 illustrations. Item #20045. Send $19.95 plus $3.00 for postage and handling to National Archives Trust Fund, Department 425 (NEPS), Room G-1: Cashier's Office, Washington, D.C. 20408. NPS Museum Handbook, Part I, Museum Collections. Rev., 1988. Provides detailed guidance to National Park Service parks and centers on the topics of acquisition, handling, packing and shipping, museum environment, storage, security, fire protection, emergency planning, and curatorial health and safety. Available from GPO in winter, 1989.

The Anthropology Division is responsible for developing service-wide archeological and ethnographic program policies, guidelines, and standards; and for monitoring program operations in the Service's field offices and parks. The archeological function is concerned with preservation, protection, and visitor use activities related to the archeological aspects of the cultural resources found in the National Park System. The ethnographic function is concerned with natural and cultural resources that, while incorporated into national park areas, are traditionally associated with and significantly related to the lifeways of contemporary Native American and other ethnic communities. A principal goal is to develop effective partnerships with these ethnic communities to promote appropriate conservation practices.

Publications on Remote Sensing for Archeological Resource Management

Remote sensing—the detection, recognition, or evaluation of objects by means of distant recording devices—is a most useful, non-destructive approach for archeologists, cultural resource managers, and land managers who are confronted with the task of inventorying and determining what cultural resources are present. Sponsored by the U.S. Department of the Interior, National Park Service, Cultural Resources Management Program, the following publications describe a variety of theories, techniques, and applications of remote sensing in archeology:

Cultural Resources Remote Sensing. Thomas R. Lyons and Frances Joan Mathien, eds. 390 pages. 80 illustrations. 1980. NTIS order number: PB88-200852. $38.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Remote Sensing, A Handbook for Archeologists and Cultural Resource Managers. Thomas R. Lyons and Thomas Eugene Avery. 109 pages. 62 illustrations. 1977. NTIS order number: PB88-201686. $19.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Remote Sensing Experiments in Cultural Resource Studies: Non-destructive Methods of Archeological Exploration, Survey, and Analysis. Thomas R. Lyons, ed. 186 pages. 38 illustrations. 1977. NTIS order number: PB88-201702. $19.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Remote Sensing and Non-Destructive Archeology. Thomas R. Lyons and James I. Ebert, Eds. 78 pages. 8 illustrations. 1978. NTIS order number: PB84-186139. $14.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

Remote Sensing: Supplements No. 1 to 10 to Remote Sensing, A Handbook for Archeologists and Cultural Resource Managers. Thomas R. Lyons, series editor. Set of ten publications on remote sensing, including: instrumentation for nondestructive exploration of cultural resources; multispectral analyses of cultural resources; aerial and terrestrial photography for archeologists; and photogrammetry in archeology—the Chaco mapping project. 487 pages. 38 illustrations. Bibliographies. 1977-1985. NTIS order number: PB88-201694. $50.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.

The Seedskadee Project: Remote Sensing in Non-Site Archeology. Dwight L. Drager and Arthur K. Ireland, eds. 642 pages. 49 illustrations. 36 tables. Bibliography. Appendices. 1986. NTIS order number: PB88-199187. $50.95 paper; $6.95 microfiche.
